PUI assignment 5

1. User interface bugs:

(1) One extra icon placeholder should be deleted.

(2) Information such as size and glazing should be presented to the clients on this page and they should be able to make choices before they add the items to cart.

Where to choose size and glazing?

(3) The shopping cart and pay page should not be open with new tablet because we don't want our customers to close the checkout window.

Navigation bar can be hidden
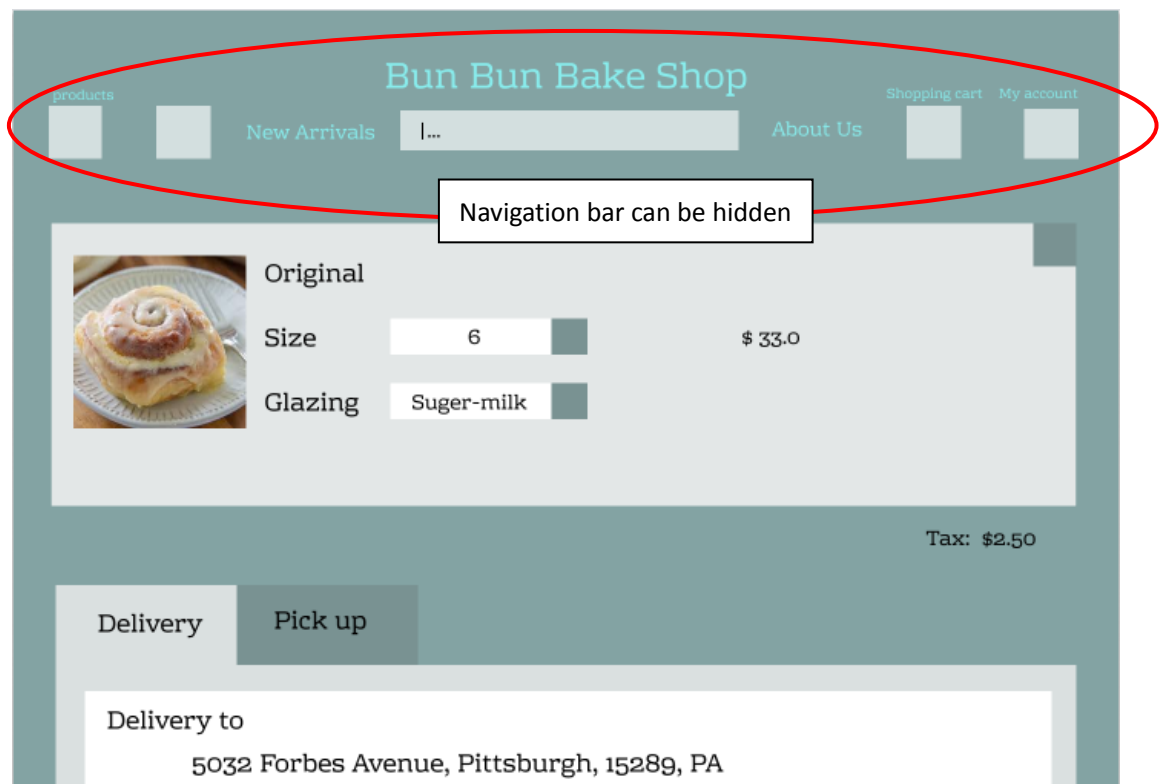

2. Challenges or bugs in the process of implementation:

(1) When I adjust the font-style in the CSS file, I made all h3 headings italic though I only need the flavor, such as "Original", "Blackberry" to be italic. I solved the problem by referring to the id of that h3 heading.

(2) I was confused about how to make my radio buttons for glazing and size bigger, then I figured out by changing the font size the button size will be adjusted automatically along with the fonts.

3.   How is the brand identity reflected through design choices?

I used rounded images as a consistent feature in my design to create an easy, comforting shopping environment. I avoid using sharp corners. The same idea applies to the color choices: I choose soft, light beige colors because I don't want the website to feel dark or serious. The brand image is cute, comforting, and homemade.
